

the event was to demonstrate acts of love to the elderly and teach their program students the importance of community outreach without restrictions.

"Love isn't selective, nor conditional and therefore, all acts of kindness should exhibit equality within all races, cultures and age groups", explained Delsie Howey, Founder & CEO of the C.O.L.O.R.S. non-for-profit organization. "Everyone is worthy of love, despite the inevitable process of aging."

It was that very thought that connected The C.O.L.O.R.S. Foundation with Melinda Berroa, Recreation Director at The Pines, and together collaborated on bringing this event to fruition. In addition, The C.O.L.O.R.S. Foundation couldn't have made this event possible without the participation of their program students, who sacrificed a few hours of their Spring Break/Easter weekend for a selfless act.
